Hopeful We Make an Impact

Through telling the stories of our customers and communities, we are hopeful their voices are heard and make an impact.

The SDBA’s scaled-back 2017 State Legislative Day on Feb. 8 in Pierre was another successful SDBA event.

The SDBA Legislative Committee, chaired by Lynn Peterson, CorTrust Bank, Yankton, had good information and discussions on a number of issues at both the state and federal level.

The highlight of the event, as always, was the awards presentation to the participants of the South Dakota Bankers Foundation’s Business Plan Competition, co-sponsored by the Governor’s Office of Economic Development. This year, we were honored that Gov. Dennis Daugaard was able to present the awards to the students. SDBA staff did a wonderful job, and Administrative Vice President Halley Lee, in her first SDBA event, made it appear seamless.

I wrote last month of the ABA’s upcoming Government Relations Summit on March 20-22 in Washington, D.C. In reading news on the federal level of potential comprehensive tax reform and regulatory relief, I am optimistic. Through telling the stories of our customers and communities, we are hopeful their voices are heard and make an impact. I hope some pages of our next magazine are filled with positive stories of the outcomes of our visits.

Until then, get ready for spring!

ABA Advocates for Changes to 2018 Farm Bill

At a Senate Agriculture Committee field hearing in Kansas on Feb. 23, 2017, ABA highlighted the critical role that the nation’s banks play providing credit to farmers and ranchers and advocated for changes to the upcoming 2018 Farm Bill that would take into account the rising costs of agriculture.

Testifying on behalf of ABA, Shan Hanes, president and CEO of First National Bank in Elkhart, Kan., and a member of ABA’s Agricultural and Rural Bankers Committee, urged lawmakers to reform the USDA Guaranteed Farm Loan Program, calling for an increase to the lending limit cap on guaranteed ownership and guaranteed operating loans, as well as other reforms that would help modernize the programs.

He encouraged lawmakers to make changes to agriculture risk coverage and price loss coverage programs in response to volatility in commodity prices that farmers have experienced in the last few years.

Hanes also raised concerns over the increasing size and complexity of the taxpayer-backed Farm Credit (FCS) System, which, if it were a bank, would be the ninth largest in the U.S.

“Congress created the FCS as a public option for farm finance 100 years ago when farmers were having trouble getting the credit they needed,” Hanes said. “These conditions no longer exist, and yet we continue to have a government-assisted, tax-advantaged farm lender providing credit to customers who would be able to easily borrow from taxpaying institutions like mine.”

Legislature Responds to Voters’ IM22 Concerns

During the SDBA’s State Legislative Day on Feb. 8, I decided to focus most of my luncheon remarks on the 2017 Legislature’s efforts to deal with constitutional mess surrounding 2016’s Initiated Measure 22.

Dubbed by its supporters as the Anti-government Corruption Act, the measure passed in November by a 51.6 percent majority. Shortly after, a group of legislators and other affected parties challenged IM22 on constitution grounds. In early December, a circuit judge held that parts of the measure indeed were unconstitutional, and because the measure’s multiple facets were so intertwined, he deemed that entire measure should not be allowed to take effect.

So when the 105 newly-elected state legislators came to Pierre on Jan. 10, 2017, they were faced with a dilemma. Aware of the many technical and constitutional shortcomings of this 28-page, 70-section measure, should they try to fix it? Or should they pursue a strategy of repeal and replace? They quickly decided on the latter approach. The majority party decided to introduce HB1069, a bill to repeal the entire measure. Introduced on Jan. 20, this measure traveled quickly through both the House and Senate. Gov. Daugaard signed the repealer on Feb. 6. A relatively small group of IM22 supporters were furious.

But consider this: The very first thing that all 105 newly-elected legislators did on Jan. 10 was to take their oath of office. Included in that oath is a sworn duty to uphold the constitution of the state of South Dakota. Knowing what they all knew about IM22, I would argue that a vote to repeal it was a vote totally in keeping with that oath.

Perhaps the unhappy supporters of IM22 should direct their anger at the very people who wrote the fatally-flawed measure in the first place—those same people who chose to ignore the constitutional concerns voiced early on last year by experienced professionals employed by the non-partisan Legislative Research Council.

So much for my unvarnished point of view. I have to admit that I might be a bit biased, because for months leading up to the November elections, my blood pressure went up every time I saw one of those smarmy television ads depicting lobbyists smoking fat cigars while passing bundles of cash to greedy politicians.

As a person who has worn a lobbyist badge for the last 34 years (19 as a “blue badge” public employee and 15 as a private lobbyist for the SDBA), I was professionally and personally offended by that whole disinformation campaign. That is not the way the people’s business gets done in our state capitol. Never has been and never will be. You win or lose bills in our state capitol building based on the strengths or weaknesses of your arguments, period.

So, IM22 is dead. What about the replacement plan? The Legislature will spend the last half of the 2017 session making final decisions about bills that are in some way related to the life and death of IM22.

Bills in play at this writing include:

- SB171 establishes a bipartisan Omnibus Government Accountability Task Force Bill that will engage in matters including campaign finance, lobbyist restriction and ethics.
- SB27 and HB1022 are conflict of interest bills aimed at preventing a repeat of the EB5 and Gear Up situations.
- HB1034 and HB1035 are measures brought by the State Board of Elections dealing with ballot measures and petitions.
- SB54 is a bill brought by the Secretary of State to revise certain campaign finance requirements.
- SB59 proposes to delay the effective date of initiated measures and referred laws until July 1 following each general election, giving time for the Legislature to give those measures a second look.
- HB1052 is a whistle blower bill brought by Republican House and Senate leaders to protect any state or local government employee against any kind of retaliation for making a good faith report of a violation of law or rule, abuse of funds and the like.
- The last bill on my list is HB1073 dealing with the issue of gifts from lobbyists to public officials.

In spite of the fact that no one ever presented any evidence to support the contention that lobbyists have been trying to buy the votes of public officials in South Dakota, that was the public face of the pro IM22 campaign. HB1073 was introduced as a way to establish clear public policy regarding lobbyists, gifts and state officials, both elected and appointed. Because the SDBA employs, compensates and authorizes lobbyists, both the SDBA and our members would have been subject to IM22’s limitations on gifts in two primary areas.

Last summer I got a call from a technology security company—Secure Enterprise Asset Management (SEAM)—interested in becoming an endorsed vendor. This company is located in Sioux Falls and works with all kinds of business taking care of the difficult task of disposing of secure and sensitive IT equipment.

I have been working with Levi Hentges, who is SEAM’s director of business development, and we toured their facilities. SEAM provides a very secure environment with skilled employees busy dismantling and destroying hard drives and equipment with private information. Hentges attended an SDBIS meeting and gave a presentation on his business, and our Board of Directors unanimously accepted SEAM as an endorsed vendor.

SEAM sent out the following press release. Please welcome SEAM as one of your preferred vendors.

SEAM Press Release

Secure Enterprise Asset Management, Inc. (SEAM), a provider of electronic asset recovery, data destruction, and disposition services for corporate organizations and financial institutions, has announced its endorsement from the South Dakota Business Association (SDBA), the professional and trade association for South Dakota’s financial services industry.

As banks grow, consolidate and go through refresh cycles, IT equipment becomes a key area of risk, particularly for the banking sector. According to the Identity Theft Resource Center, 2015 marked the first time in history that the financial industry has ranked in the top three, at 9.1 percent of all breaches, nearly doubling the average from 2014. SEAM offers a secure solution to prevent the risk of a data breach or loss when technology reaches the end of its operational lifespan.

SEAM provides IT asset disposition services to organizations across South Dakota and the surrounding states. The company separates itself from the competition with its knowledge of regulatory requirements, years of trusted experience and certifications with the highest worldwide standards for data security, environmental management, health, safety and quality processes.

“We are thrilled about our new partnership with the South Dakota Bankers Association,” said Levi Hentges, director of business development. “As the only fully-certified ITAD provider in all of the Dakotas, we understand the security risks banks face when decommissioning their IT equipment. Our data destruction and asset disposal services bring a cost-effective, efficient and lower-risk solution for security compliance to the SDBA’s membership.”

Endorsed vendors are closely reviewed and selected based on their ability to meet the SDBA’s high expectations for quality and service.

“We are pleased to announce SEAM as our newest endorsed vendor,” said Mike Feimer, president, South Dakota Bankers Insurance & Services, Inc. “They bring a unique set of services that will greatly benefit our members. We look forward to a successful partnership and are excited about the security advantages they will offer.”

The association endorses vendors who provide quality products and services to improve competitive standing and/or increase profitability, while enhancing the value of SDBA membership for their members.

About SEAM

Secure Enterprise Asset Management, Inc. (D/B/A SEAM) is a Sioux Falls-based IT asset lifecycle management company specializing in data destruction, asset recovery and environmentally-sound recycling of business technology equipment. As the first and only company certified to e-Stewards 2.0, R2:2013, ISO 14001 and OHSAS 18001 in the Dakotas, SEAM is an acknowledged industry leader and is a member in good standing with the National Association of Information Destruction (NAID). SEAM also operates a resale division, Bargain Bytes, a Microsoft registered refurbisher.

South Dakota Banks Make a Difference in Our Communities

The SDBA unveiled the results of its latest South Dakota Banks Make a Difference Survey during its State Legislative Day on Feb. 8, 2017, in Pierre. Copies of the promotional handout were provided to attendees, all state legislators, and mailed to member banks and branches.

The document is a great tool that banks can use to promote all of the things that they do for their communities. Banks are encouraged to use the document in their promotional efforts, make copies as needed and link on their websites.

Each January, the SDBA sends the electronic survey to each bank. Of the 76 member banks, 36 responded to this year’s survey and 14 banks provided photos and/or a short narrative about a community service project.

View the survey results at www.sdba.com/sd-banks-make-a-difference. Questions, contact Alisa DeMers at ademers@sdba.com or 800.726.7322.

Sierra Ward, a Belle Fourche High School student, won first-prize in the 27th annual Business Plan Competition for high school students.

The concept behind the Business Plan Competition, co-sponsored by the South Dakota Bankers Foundation and the Governor’s Office of Economic Development, is to take an idea for a business that could be started by a student and transfer it into a business plan.

Notice of the competition went to all South Dakota high schools last fall, resulting in 49 business plans.

The finalists, their parents and advisors were invited to attend the South Dakota Bankers Association’s State Legislative Day on Feb. 8, 2017, in Pierre to receive awards from Gov. Dennis Daugaard in recognition of their entrepreneurial efforts.

First-Place Winner
Sierra Ward submitted a plan to offer clients an experienced trainer as well as a safe place to board horses. The goal of Ward’s Horse Training and Boarding is to satisfy customers with a professionally-trained, happy horse which makes for a happy rider. Ward received an iPad and $1,000.

Second-Place Winner
Shantell Brewer, a student from Dupree High School, received second place and an iPad and $500. Local farmers and ranchers in Dewey and Ziebach counties will be able to benefit from Cross Fencing. Brewer will provide a fencing service for customers who do not have the time or ability to repair their own fence.

Third-Place Winner
Sanborn Central High School students Weston Baysinger, Forestburg, and Sarah Morgan, Artesian, received third place and an iPad. They proposed Critter Catchers, a varmint/predator control business. Through Critter Catchers, customers will be able to properly and safely eliminate the threat of these animals on local farms, business, livestock and homes.

Runners-Up
Three runners-up each received $300 for their entries:

- Junk in the Trunk will allow Maria Beadle, Bowdle High School, the opportunity to recycle and reuse various items to make both interior and exterior decorations. Junk in the Trunk will offer repurposed items through this up-cycled home decor shop.
- Sam Dalton, Waverly South Shore High School, plans to develop a pick-your-own pumpkin patch near Watertown. This pumpkin patch would not only sell pumpkins but the unique experience of enjoying the outdoors while making a fall-decor selection.
- At Crazy Consignments, a Bowdle-based consignment shop, Payton Eisenbeisz, Bowdle High School, will turn unwanted clothes, accessories, decor and home goods into a profitable business for Eisenbeisz as well as contributors.

Alternates

- Tawny Maxon, McLaughlin, McLaughlin High School
- Aaron Stevens, Letcher, and Quentin Schmidt, Artesian, Sanborn Central High School

New Legislative Event Format a Success

The South Dakota Bankers Association held its 2017 State Legislative Day on Feb. 8 in Pierre at the Ramkota Hotel & Conference Center. Bankers heard a legislative update from SDBA President Curt Everson, and Cassie Stoeser provided an update from the Governor’s Office of Economic Development. The featured presenter was Jennifer Duffy, senior editor for The Cook Political Report.

Due to uncertainties surrounding Initiated Measure 22, the SDBA decided to change the format of its annual State Legislative Day and eliminated the evening sit-down meal at the Ramkota. Instead, a heavy hors d’oeuvres reception was held starting at 5 p.m., where bankers had a chance to visit with legislators and constitutional officers.

The evening concluded with the announcement of the winners of the South Dakota Bankers Foundation’s Business Plan Competition.

Thank you to the South Dakota Governor’s Office of Economic Development for sponsoring the noon luncheon, Federal Home Loan Bank of Des Moines for sponsoring Duffy and Promontory Interfinancial Network, LLC for sponsoring the evening reception.

Getting Into Washington’s Business

Few would dispute that Washington is very much in the business of banking. But who is in the business of Washington?

According to the Congressional Research Service, the members of the 115th Congress include a record number of women (109), African-Americans (52), Hispanic or Latino members (45), and Asian, Indian or Pacific Island Americans (18).

They also include a fairly typical mix of professions, with a heavy dose of members having previously served in public office, business, law and education. A closer look at previous occupations reveals that our current class of lawmakers includes 36 from the real estate industry, 26 farmers or ranchers, 14 physicians, 11 accountants, nine social workers, eight ordained ministers, seven radio talk show hosts, six software company executives, three venture capitalists, two Peace Corps volunteers and one physicist.

So where do bankers rank? There are currently 18 members who came to Congress with a background in banking. Relative to the other professions noted above, 18 bankers may seem like decent representation. But unlike the other professions, banking is an industry that plays a central role in economic growth and job creation. You have relationships with all these other professions, helping to meet their funding, cash management and payroll needs. You also have relationships with more than 112 million American households. That suggests we need far more bankers to serve in Congress, representing not just our institutions, but also the families, customers and communities that we serve.

And if that isn’t enough reason, consider that of the 60 men and women who serve on the House Financial Services Committee—one of Congress’ largest committees and the one that sets the agenda and oversight of laws governing banking—only five have banking experience. That’s absurd.

Now here’s the good news. Bankers are already in the business of serving their communities, not just through their bank, but also on the boards of the local nonprofit, hospital and school system. Arguably serving in public office is nothing more than a logical next step rather than a giant leap. The even better news is that ABA has a way to help you take that next step.

This September we are piloting our first ever ABA Candidate School to help bankers—Democrat, Republican or Independent—run for state or federal public office. The nonpartisan school, set for Sept. 13-15, 2017, in Washington, D.C., will provide all the information you need on how to file necessary paperwork, manage paid and earned media, fund raise, research and target, and get out the vote. It will demystify the process.

As you may have heard me say when describing ABA’s Power Up initiative, aimed at building our industry’s political capacity, if the past decade has taught us anything, it’s that more bankers need to be involved in the public policy debates surrounding our industry. And those casting votes on banking policy must fully understand and appreciate the impact their decisions will have on a community and its residents.

So if you have ever considered running for office, or if you have been a vocal advocate on state or federal policy issues and are ready to take your political engagement to the next level, I strongly encourage you to apply to this school. Download an application (due June 1) and learn all the details at www.aba.com/RunforOffice.

Washington has long been in banking’s business. Now it’s time to put more bankers in the business of Washington. Because when it comes to setting banking and economic policy, nothing beats your real-world experience.

Economic Outlook by Alan Blinder

By Alan S. Blinder, Vice Chairman and Co-Founder, Promontory Interfinancial Network, LLC and Professor of Economics and Public Affairs, Princeton University

The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting that ended Feb. 1, 2017, was probably not as boring as the official statement made it appear. The most “exciting” thing in the statement was a new sentence: “Measures of consumer and business sentiment have improved of late.” Markets snap to attention on new sentences and seem to have read this one correctly: The FOMC is getting happier about the economy. But that’s pretty small beer.

Two things that did not appear in the statement probably occupied most of the meeting time.

First, there was almost certainly lots of discussion about the fiscal policy that the Trump administration is likely to propose and the Republican Congress is likely to deliver. At this juncture, with the economy roughly at full employment, fiscal stimulus is unnecessary for the economy and unwanted by the Fed; it will almost certainly hasten the pace of interest rate hikes.

FOMC members are aware of all that, but they don’t know any more about future fiscal policy than we do. So, it was an ideal subject for uninformed speculation inside the meeting room, but entirely inappropriate to say anything about it in the statement.

Second, the committee almost certainly spent a lot of time ruminating about its future balance sheet policy—in particular, how best to reduce its asset holdings when the time comes. But that time is probably still far in the future, so there was no reason to say anything about it in the statement.

Indeed, there was every reason not to say a word—which is exactly what the Committee did. I never understood why some market participants had speculated that the Fed would drop some hints this month about its future balance sheet policy. But some of them did, and they were disappointed.

The March meeting could be far more interesting—if the fiscal picture has been clarified by then. It might even bring another 25 basis points of tightening. We’ll see.

SDBA News

Bankers Needed to Serve on SDBA Standing Committees

The SDBA is seeking bankers to serve on its four standing committees for 2017-2018: Agricultural Credit Committee, Credit Card Committee, Legislative Committee and Trust Committee. The committees assist in directing SDBA activities in various areas of banking and legislation.

Committee terms are one year beginning May 1, 2017, with the exception of Legislative Committee members who serve three-year terms. Bankers have the option of serving more than one term (except Legislative Committee members who are limited to two consecutive terms).

Committees generally meet one to two times a year to initiate activities and to recommend policy. Volunteer committee members contribute to a stronger banking industry by sharing their time and talents.

The Committee Membership Form will be sent to banks and branches in March or visit www.sdba.com/committees. Questions, contact the SDBA at 800.726.7322.

40, 50-Year Banker Awards Available

The SDBA will honor and recognize those bankers with 40 or 50 years of service in banking during its annual business luncheon on June 6, 2017, at the Quad States Convention in Rapid City.

To request an award for someone who has been in banking for 40 or 50 years, please complete the form by May 16, 2017. Visit www.sdba.com/service-awards-memorial-service.

SDBA Seeks Names for Memorial Service

Bankers who have passed away since the last annual convention (June 2016) will be remembered during the SDBA’s annual business luncheon on June 6, 2017, at the Quad States Convention in Rapid City.

The deadline to submit a name for the memorial service is May 16, 2017. Visit www.sdba.com/service-awards-memorial-service.

The SDBA hosts elected and appointed state officials at a reception and dinner during our annual State Legislative Day. The South Dakota Bankers Foundation awards scholarships and Business Plan Competition awards to young people. IM22’s restrictions extended to family members of state officials.

As it currently sits, HB1073 places a $100 annual cap on gifts and imposes criminal penalties on public officials for violation. That said, it exempts food and beverage provided for immediate consumption from the cap as long as the tab for the food and beverage is below $75 per covered person. Those meals would not count toward the $100 annual limit on gifts.

In the case of the Foundation’s scholarships and Business Plan Competition, SDBA worked with supporters of HB1073 to amend the bill so that neither the SDBA nor member banks need to worry about whether or not a scholarship or Business Plan Competition award winner is the son or daughter of a covered state official.

From day one of the 2017 session, it was very clear that legislators of both political parties wanted to enact measures to send a clear message that, notwithstanding the shortcomings and ultimate demise of IM22, they understood that South Dakota voters want proof that their concerns about transparency, accountability and trust of public officials were heard and acted upon. While the 2017 session isn’t complete, it appears that they will do just that.
